

Welcome Mass of Cool Air From Canada Moves Across New York Today

Weatherman Promises Comfortable Temperatures, No Rain in Prospect for at Least Three Days; Death Toll Mounts to 173 in 16 States

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—A welcome mass of cool air from Canada moved across New York today to end the state's siege of sizzling weather.

In addition, the Weather Bureau put out the cheerful word that there was "no real torrid stuff in sight."

The bureau promised more comfortable temperatures of the low and mid-80s as a measure of relief for New Yorkers who sweltered most of last week under 90 to 100 degrees.

Deaths attributed to the intense heat in the state numbered 43 of which 31 were in New York city and vicinity. The toll included nine drownings.

Weather forecasters said the cool air began moving in on the state yesterday and by this morning had spread to all but the southeastern portion. It was expected to reach New York city area during the day.

Gentle to moderate winds from the northwest accompanied the cool air in some sections.

The forecast for tonight was fair and a little cooler with the mercury in the 60s. Fair weather also was promised for tomorrow with highest temperatures in the low and middle 80s.

The Weather Bureau said there was no rain in prospect for at least three days.

Says Newspapers Should Consider Information First

Publisher of N. Y. Times Is Against Biased Stories in Free Press of U. S.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, President and publisher of the New York Times, said today "I think a newspaper should place more emphasis on information and less on entertainment."

He added that he thinks "there are sound business reasons for such a policy."

Sampling of truthful, accurate information is a primary responsibility of a press which must control itself from within, Sulzberger told the New York State Publishers' Association in a prepared speech.

The news lies, in a sense, in the public domain and we are the trustees of a great national interest," he said.

Obviously, a man's judgment cannot be better than the information on which he has based it.

Print the Truth

"Give him the truth and he may still go wrong when he has the chance to be right, but give him no news or present him only with distorted and incomplete data, with ignorant, sloppy or biased reporting, with propaganda and deliberate falsehoods, and you destroy his whole reasoning processes, and make him something less than a man."

"It is good business to emphasize information rather than entertainment, because the latter can be presented better by such media as radio and the new television industry," the Times publisher declared.

He added, however, that "television and radio can never replace the newspaper which devotes itself to the comprehensive publication of news."

Sulzberger said private ownership of the press is its great strength because it could not be free otherwise.

But "control must come from within," he maintained. "Which means that on the structure of press freedom must be imposed the responsibility of the press."

Right of the Readers

"The community has the right," he said, "to know the truth."

Hurricane on Way

300-Mile Giant Twister May Reach Carolina Coast by Nightfall

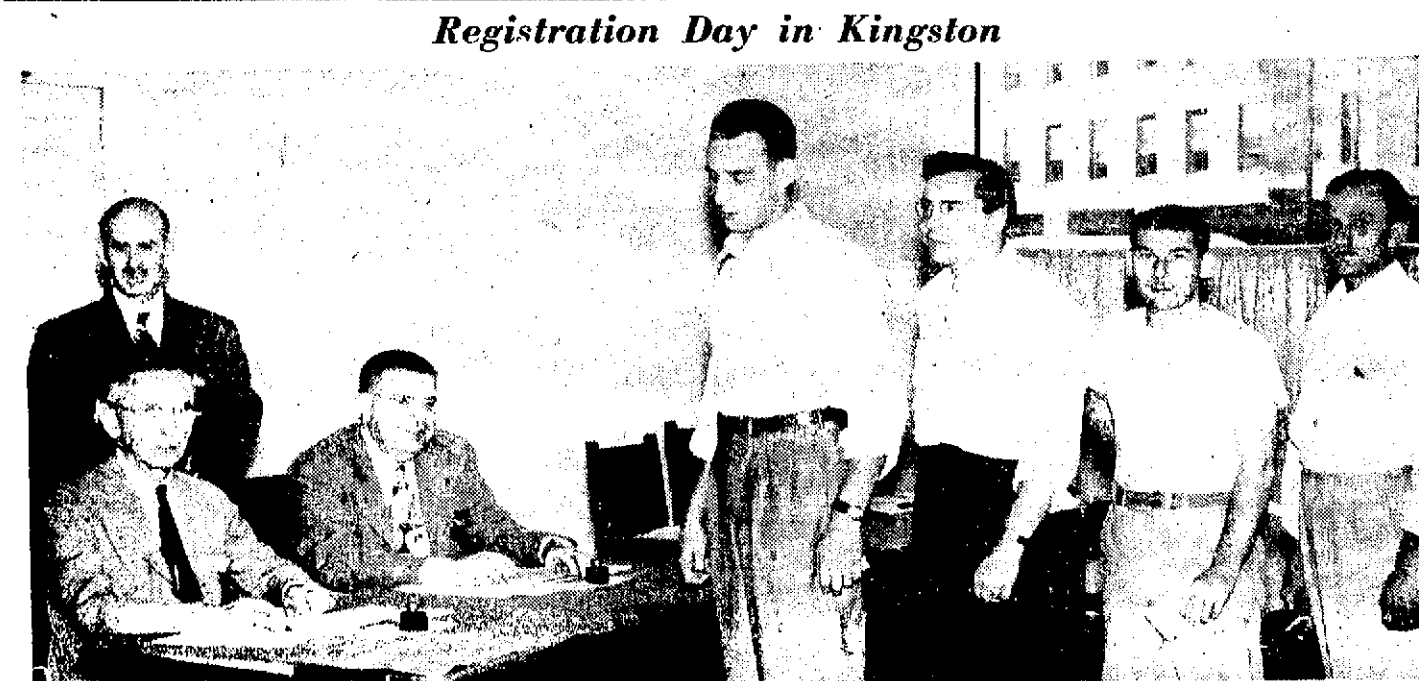

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30 (AP)—Hurricane warnings were ordered tonight from Wilmington, N. C., to Cape Hatteras, N. C., early today as a violent tropical hurricane surged toward the mainland with winds up to 125 miles per hour.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered about north of Hatteras to the Virginia Capes and northwest storm warnings south of Wilmington to Charleston, S. C.

The full fury of the raging giant twister which now covers an area nearly 300 miles in diameter was expected to reach the North Carolina coast by nightfall.

"This is an emergency, warn all interests," the Federal Storm Warning Service said in a special advisory issued at 4 a. m. (E.S.T.). "All measures should be taken for the protection of life and property."

Registration Day in Kingston

Four local men were on hand to register for the nation's second peacetime draft when local Draft Board 18 began its work at 8 o'clock this morning at its offices in the Millard Building. Seated at the table to the left, above, are members of the local board, William H. Grogan and Chairman Dr. Joseph H. Rosenberg.

Two Horse Rooms Raided in Catskill By State Police

Guerino Ruzzo Fined $25 Also W. Macarelli; Players Let Go; One Place Empty

Catskill, Aug. 30.—Two horse rooms in this village, one on Bridge street in a room in the rear of Steve's Sport Shop, and the other on Bronson street, were closed Friday afternoon just before 3:30 in simultaneous raids by State Police, it was reported Saturday by the Catskill Mail.

About a dozen officers, under the command of Inspector Charles La Forge and Lt. Gray of Troy, and including the full personnel of the Catskill barracks and additional troopers from Albany and Troy, took part in the raids.

About a dozen players who were allowed to go, were found in the Bridge street place, where William Macarelli and Guerino Ruzzo, the alleged owners and operators, were also arrested. Arraigned immediately before Police Justice John D. Whittaker on charges of being gamblers, they paid fines of $25 each and were released.

Strangely enough, not a single person was found in the Bronson street room, giving rise to the belief that someone tipped off the cops.

The opening day program will include the annual Baby Beef club Continued on Page Eleven

36 Persons Killed When Storm Raked Airliner Crashes

Human Chain Winds Its Way Down Ravine to Bring Out the Mangled Bodies

Winona, Minn., Aug. 30 (AP)—A human chain will wind its way down the steep and rocky side of a 150 foot ravine today to bring out the mangled bodies of 26 persons trapped in the wrecked fuselage of a Northwest Airlines plane.

The bodies of 10 others were carried out last night.

The 36 persons died as the storm raked airliner crashed atop a wooded Mississippi river bluff near here late yesterday and toppled into the ravine.

The crash occurred between Winona and Fountain City, Wis., on the Wisconsin side of the river during the height of a severe electrical and rain storm.

Coroner Herbert F. Stohr of Alma, Wis., said ten bodies were removed to Alma before recovery efforts were halted last night. He said that the sides of the ravine were so steep that he must use a human chain of workers to remove the bodies still trapped in the tangled wreckage. The wooded and rocky ravine has 45 degree slopes.

The plane was one of the airlines newer Martin 2-0-2 ships and was bound for Minneapolis from Chicago with 33 passengers and three crew members.

It left Chicago at 3:50 p. m. (C.S.T.) and although due in Minneapolis at 5:30 p. m. apparently was behind schedule because of the storm.

A N.W.A. pilot who was among the first to reach the crash scene said he thought the ship had been struck by lightning.

Howard Rackow, a farmer, living on Perry Island in the Mississippi river, told the coroner he was getting some stock out of the storm when the plane passed over. "I was in the yard with my mother," he said. "There was a flash of lightning. It struck the plane. A part of a wing fell off and the ship started down."

Mrs. Charles Guenther, a Fountain City farm woman, told a similar story. She and her husband saw the crash from their automobile.

Bits of wreckage were scattered over a wide area. Some of it was found in a ball park in Winona seven miles away.

E. W. Head, who was returning to Minneapolis from Toronto, Canada, missed the plane at Chicago although he was listed as a passenger. There were still 33 passengers aboard because a two-year-old child who was among the victims was an unlisted passenger.

The crash was the worst in N.W.A.'s history. Thirty persons died when one of the line's Orient planes smashed into the side of an Alaskan mountain last March 30.

Less than two months ago, N.W.A. was given a national safety council award for having flown more than a billion miles without an accident.

Passengers included: Green, Miss Toni, New York city fashion designer; Beinenfeld, Morris, New York city, president, Best Form Foundations; Burzycki, M. Z., New York city; Johnson, Alice May, 111 E. 26th street, New York.

Dewey Schedule

Pawling, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey scheduled a round of campaign conferences in New York city today. Aides said his callers would be announced later in the day. Tomorrow afternoon the New York governor will attend funeral services for Charles Evans Hughes, former chief justice of the United States, at Riverside Church in New York. Dewey plans to go to Albany by train Wednesday morning.

To Choose Electors

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—The Republican State Committee meets today to designate 47 presidential electors. Names of all but two electors-at-large have been submitted to the committee by local G.O.P. leaders. The executive committee meets prior to the state group to recommend the two electors-at-large.

Firemen Overcome

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Thirteen firemen were treated for inhalation of nitro-cellulose fumes early today following a smoky fire in a stack of motion-picture films on the eighth floor of the Film Center Building, 630 Ninth avenue.

Subpoena Is Served by Investigator Today at Hearing on Charges of Deportation

Another Name Witnesses Link Him With the Name of Alexander Stevens

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee today served a subpoena on J. Peters, described by Whittaker Chambers as the head of the Communist underground in the United States.

Peters, who also is known as Alexander Stevens, was ordered to appear at a committee hearing scheduled here today.

The subpoena was served by a committee investigator at a hearing of the immigration and naturalization service. Peters appeared at the hearing to answer deportation charges brought by the service.

Asked if he would appear at the House Committee's hearing, Peters said: "I don't know. I will have to consult my counsel."

Mrs. Carol King, his attorney, said her client was now under jurisdiction of the immigration service which would have to say whether he could go to the un-American activity group's session.

The House Committee had been trying to find Peters for months but was unable to until the immigration service said he would be ordered to appear here today.

Peters' name has figured in the sensational row between Chambers, a prime witness in the House Committee's probe of alleged Communist infiltration into the government, and Alger Hiss, former high state department official.

Chambers testified that Peters introduced him to Hiss.

Hiss, now president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, has denied nearly all of Chambers' charges and has stated flatly he is not a Communist.

Chambers, now a senior editor for Time magazine, also is scheduled to appear at the committee's hearing here today.

As he sat at the witness table at the Immigration Service hearing, Peters was asked by newsmen if he knew Chambers.

"I wouldn't answer that," he replied.

He made the same reply when asked if he knew Hiss.

Two members of the House Committee, Rep. Robert Nixon (R-Calif.) and Rep. John McDowell (R-Pa.) were present when the subpoena was served on Peters.

Peters was arrested on an immigration service deportation warrant last October 8, and charged with illegal entry into the United States. He was freed on $5,000 bond.

The Service said at that time that Peters was a Czech and had come to this country without a valid immigration visa on August 3, 1932. Peters has six aliases, the Service said. Mrs. King said her client's real name is Alexander Stevens.

The attorney said before the hearing that "this is not a naturalization hearing. It is just a notice to come here and be served with a subpoena."

The Immigration Service said Stevens lives at Kew Gardens in the borough of Queens in New York city.

Peters gave his age as 54. He is a thick-set man with graying hair and a mustache.

Peters declined to participate in the immigration hearing in any way on the advice of Mrs. King. Continued on Page Three

Two Are Injured

Peggy Terray, Saugerties and Philip Gerlach Hit Tree in Car

Two persons were treated at Kingston Hospital Sunday night for injuries received when the automobile in which they were riding struck a tree on Lucas avenue near Emerson street about 8:30 p. m., the police reported.

Philip Gerlach, of the Savkill road, received a cut on his left arm which required eight sutures to close, a slight cut on his right eye and a bruise on his face, while Peggy Terray, 22, of Saugerties, was treated for bruises on her knees and legs, police said.

Patrolmen Kenneth Hyatt and Leonard Ellsworth reported that Gerlach, the driver, told them he had fallen asleep and the car rolled to the right side of the street and struck a maple tree.

How Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge Will Look

This is how the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge, eighth largest in the world, will look in 1952, if the project starts and keeps moving on schedule, according to David B. Steinman, of New York city, consulting engineer for the New York State Bridge Authority, whose plans and specifications will be presented at a public hearing in the Ulster county court house, Wall street, Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. Reason for the session is to officially disclose to the War Department all data on the bridge, so that bureau may pass on the plans as they deal with navigation on the river.

Steinman's plans call for a bridge two and a half miles, approaches included. The $14,000,000 span would connect eight major highways in this area. Any person interested in construction of the bridge may attend Tuesday's meeting and his or her views will be heard. A request has been made that statements be prepared in triplicate so that a copy may be filed with the presiding officer for forwarding to the War Department. If the Steinman plans are approved by the U.S. Army, the State Bridge Authority and the State Public Works Department, it is hoped that the bridge can be finished in 1952.

As indicated by the picture, the bridge will extend from Kingston Point on the west shore to a point on the east shore about one-half mile north of Rhinecliff railroad station. This location gives the best alignment for the crossing, offering the lowest total cost while satisfying the governing objectives. It has been selected as the desired location following surveys, borings, and comparative designs and estimates covering a total of five alternative crossings that were considered.

This proposed crossing is normal to the channel. At this location, the distance from shore to shore is 3700 feet. The depth of water (except close to shore) ranges from 31 to 46 feet. The depth of rock at the two river piers is 101 and 113 feet, respectively.

U.S. Security Is Seriously Threatened--Forum Speakers

Woodstock, Aug. 30.—The national security of the United States is facing the most serious threat of its existence according to three brilliant and well-informed speakers on the platform at the Woodstock Forum in Town Hall last week. Ira Wolfert, writer and former war correspondent, asserted that our bi-partisan foreign policy was responsible for this situation while Frank Meyer, writer and historian who denounced Communism several years ago, and Nathaniel Weyl, economist, blamed Russia for the present state of affairs. The speakers and Moderator Henry Morton Robinson are all residents of Woodstock.

In spite of high temperatures, the largest audience since the beginning of the open forums attended this meeting and it was necessary for over a hundred to stand in the side aisles, the back of the hall and at various exits.

Both schools of thought expounded from the platform were well represented in the audience. It was noted that many who are actively associated with the Wallace Club were chiefly in agreement with Wolfert's ideas while others in the audience were more inclined to agree with Meyer and Weyl. It was one of the most stimulating discussions held in Town Hall this year and when Chairman Van Wagenen reminded Henry Morton Robinson, Reader Digest editor and author, moderator for the evening, that the forum group had decided the discussion should end at 10:30 p. m., Robinson took exception and stated that it was an open forum and everybody present should have an opportunity to speak their minds and that it was up to the audience as to when the meeting should be concluded.

In setting forth his reasons why "our national security is threatened," Wolfert said, "It seems to me and this is a very careful opinion arrived at after spending a great part of my adult life in following the international football game, that our national security is threatened mostly by the so-called bi-partisan foreign policy which we have been following since the war and which we apparently intend to continue to follow. I don't seriously object to its being called a bi-partisan policy because I think it represents a majority opinion of the people of the United States at present but I am seriously believe that the majority opinion has been arrived at because of a lack of information and knowledge in which to decide how wars come about."

Wolfert stated that in America, it is considered we have but one foreign enemy, namely, Russia, whose power is described as an imperial one that must be stopped from grabbing off the world, by all methods including war. According to his teaching, the speaker said that Russia is not an imperial power. Elucidating on the subject, Wolfert described Britain as a bankrupt imperial power and remarked, "I don't think that either Russia or the United States intends to revise this bankrupt policy, but I do believe that both Russia and the United States are terribly afraid of each other . . . that this feeling has been aggravated consistently and continuously by the policy on both sides and that the foundation is now very thoroughly laid for a final and ghastly world war."

The difference between the Communist Russia regime and Nazi Germany, stated Wolfert, was that the former was not a "devourer of its raw materials, while the latter was." Said he, "This is an essential difference because for Hitler war was the only possible way to continue to function while for the Soviet government, war is a lunatic enterprise that runs counter to the national life."

Need Improved Weapons
According to Wolfert, he gave up his career as a newspaper man and war correspondent following World War 2. Since that time he has talked with Army generals and naval officers who have described to him their problems in this country. "The problem as they faced it," he said, "was a very difficult one because the push button war is at least 15 years off and fighting Russia with the weapons which exist now is a logistical nightmare." He then told of the difficulties involved in securing ones from which the United States might attack Russia and how the insistence of the generals has caused us to embrace a foreign policy identical with the one that carried Britain through one hundred years of peace after the time of Napoleon and "finally put them in the position they are in today. . . that policy is to threaten . . . to dominate by power and to throttle an adversary before he can become strong enough to throttle you."

"General Spaatz," he said, "is convinced that since we are not showing any signs of decay, this policy will bring 100 years of peace but I, on the other hand, and I hope millions of other people who see the problem are convinced that such a policy is suicide for us and for the world."

Frank Meyer, who is familiar with Communist policy through his former association with them, maintained in a very positive way that the threat to our national security "comes from the basic policies and actions of the men who control the destinies of Soviet Russia. I would maintain the same threat would come from any state whose leadership and the principles of whose existence were based on the type of proposals on which these men's are based." He stated that those in control in Russia would have one believe that they are the "holders of the knowledge of what is good for the world and anyone who differs with them is evil, and that fate and history is on their side."

Cites Communist Idea
Meyer asserted that the Communist idea was "that which is against us is wrong" and that any means leading to the achievement of their goal is not only excusable but right to use because so far as they are concerned, there exists no question of justice, no question of morals that can be appealed to.

This speaker described the beginning of Communism which he said began as a dream of a better life started by a small group. It unfortunately became identified with a dictatorial system of a small caste and their followers throughout the world. He made it clear that Communists were conditioned to a single mode of thought; that what is proposed by the officials as the truth today is so and if they change their minds tomorrow, then that becomes the truth. Said he, "There is no opposition. A decision can be made. It can be war or peace." As an example, he cited the handling of the incident of Oksana Kasenkina, the Russian schoolteacher, who case has received widespread publicity.

Meyer described at great length the breaking of agreements by the Russians. He contended that when they make what appears to be a magnanimous gesture, it is done with the full knowledge that such a suggestion could not possibly be accepted. In this regard, he referred to the proposal for disarmament. When such a proposal was made he stated Russia was strong in manpower but weak in armaments. In his opinion, the United States government has "bent over backwards in its efforts to deal with Russia and continued, 'I would submit that never in the history of the world has a nation shown its decency and goodwill our nation showed in the Baruch and Acheson-Lillenthal proposals when we offered to place atomic energy under international authority, provided the Russians, like ourselves, would agree to the inspection clause. 'This is in the record of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.' Whether it is advisable, I am not arguing but this proposal showed our willingness to go further than any nation in the history of the world. It was rejected by the Soviet Union. Followed a series of counter proposals that we stop manufacturing our weapons but the Soviet Union refused to submit to any degree of inspection. Which of the two great powers was willing to make sacrifices for peace? Is war then inevitable? I don't think so. Those of us who don't support the policy of appeasement hate war just as much as the others."

Urges Firm Policy
Russia can be restricted only by being contained Meyer believed and urged extreme patience in negotiations. "So long as the present policy of the Soviet Union exists, we cannot expect to relax." He predicted that the stagnation which comes with regimentation will fall of its own accord sooner or later. "If we develop a policy of determination and stand firm against war but just as firm against a loss of freedom, we can solve the problem with trust in our own institutions and individuals."

Nathaniel Weyl, when he took the platform, contended that to have a durable peace in the world today it is essential that an international security organization be established which if it is to function must be based on very close cooperation between the major powers. He stated, however, that we face a situation where cooperation with the U.S.S.R. is not possible and without it we cannot develop a world organization.

Weyl elucidated on his contention by stating that "the philosophy of Marxism is that the capitalist system must be succeeded by the socialist system in the form which occurs in the Soviet Union and its satellite countries." This, according to the speaker, the Soviets hope to accomplish through world revolution. According to the Communist point of view their victory is inevitable and that time is on their side, that the disintegration of our system is historically in the cards.

Russians Not Ready
The reason given by the speaker for war having been staved off during various critical situations arising within the past two years was the fact that the Soviet government was not strong enough to risk war and further because of the fact that Russia was time is on their side and they are unwilling to risk war. He believed there was no likelihood of any Communist victories over western Europe for several reasons, one of which was the economic stabilization which might be expected to result from the Marshall Plan.

Another reason was the production and industrialization, Mr. Weyl stated it was difficult to ascertain the truth because of the falsification of data released. "We just know they are seriously wrong," he said. He did state, however, that the production of crops in the U.S.S.R. per farmer increased only 25 per cent between 1913 and 1939 and that the overall production is believed to show an increase during the same period of 50 per cent. The American farmer was said to be four and one-half times as efficient as the Russian farmer. Other comparisons made were that the Soviet worked fifteen times longer than the American for his food, twelve times as long for a pair of shoes, eleven times for a radio, and twenty times as hard for a wet watch.

Sees Discontentment
"When you have an economic system that drives men of their ordinary freedom, when you have a very large part of the Soviet population in penal colonies, when men are asked to exchange all their freedoms for a future abundance, discontentment is bound to follow eventually." In this category, was mentioned the number of citizens who have fled the country and of particular note was the statement that over one million citizens offered to fight on the German side. "The mere fact that you could have treason on that scale suggests what the outcome might be."

Misunderstanding and bluff according to Weyl would be the most likely probability of war in the near future between Russia and the U. S. and it was because of this possibility that a containment policy must have an absolute clear line of demarcation.

War Not Inevitable
About the Berlin crisis, Weyl said, "I think the reason we are having a war crisis over Berlin is that the military personnel took a very strong hand in what should have been the policy of the Department of State, and so, we thereby committed ourselves. Many people in Washington believed before the war crisis developed, we should have obtained Soviet Vienna in return for Germany. We should make it very clear to the Soviets that we have no desire whatsoever to overthrow their government or to wage war against them. Whether the government is a tyranny is not a concern of the U. S. as long as it is a static group. Answering his own question, "Is war inevitable?" Mr. Weyl said, "No, I think time is generally on our side. . . . If we bring prosperity to those countries adjoining Russia, perhaps they will turn their energy inward. Dictatorships in the past have ceased to be a threat to the world."

During the rebuttal period, Frank Meyer stated that while he was in full agreement that the only way to have all the powers of the world on the basis of common attitudes on the subjects of war and peace, his feeling was that it is not a solution because any form of world organization would never be joined in by the Soviet Union. He considers those working for world organization are doing a good job but did not believe it to be a solution to the problem today.

Weyl maintained that while Meyer viewed the question in terms of the Soviet conduct for expansion rather than fear of the U. S. and Wolfert viewed it as fear, he believed there is both the drive for world expansion and the fear of war and attack. He pointed out that there are many Communist and Communist sympathizers among the intellectuals—but broadly, I think the United States has a right for allegiance and faith of mankind—a development of backward areas—in carrying out world education, world health and greater freedom among colonial peoples and those things we cherish in the United States. Any conflict is now a political one to determine who the masses are to follow, ourselves or the Soviets with their false gods.

"They can all say over and over again what the press and their economic and political leaders are saying in order to sell us a bill of goods," said Wolfert. "They speak of our containment policy of Soviet Russia as something static but I think a policy of static containment is dynamic and not static in the long run."

In adventures, some of which have already given us nightmares."

Adopting a policy of containment in Europe had already brought us into two wars, said Wolfert and we are now adopting a cause of bankrupt leadership in Britain and bankrupt leadership in Russia which has caused us so much bloodshed and destruction of everything decent that every man has stood for.

About appeasement Wolfert continued, "the word appeasement has been used as it is used in the press. It is regarded as something shameful. Nobody has said anything here this evening that has made anyone think Russia wants to attack us and, why can't we live with Russia? Why can't we live in the same world where the alternative is so unthinkable? . . . I call for a policy of action. . . . I call for a policy that faces the realities of the world in which we live. The surest way to pick a fight is to put guns in your pocket and call your neighbor stating that you are protecting yourself in case he should decide to attack you."

During the audience participation period, one or more listeners called attention to the fact that there was a great bias against Russia by two of the speakers. One questioner asked, "Why do they hate Russia? Not once did they mention that the United States might be responsible for it. They failed to show why the United States wants to contain Russia. What business is it of the United States to go into Europe?"

Replies pro and con were heard on questions pertaining to giving up the veto in the United Nations, withdrawing troops from Greece, and so on.

The prominent resident inquired, "If Russia is as terrible as you paint it, how do you explain that so many intelligent people in this country are in sympathy with Russia. . . . Is it because they think we are doing the wrong thing or is it because they are afraid of war with Russia, or is it merely because they admire the government of Russia?"

Weyl replied it was several factors entered into this situation, and among them was the fact that the liberals and progressives have a feeling of supporting the under dog and that the Soviet Communists represent themselves as a defense of the common people's rights even though they are really not the experience of world domination in 1932 which seemed to indicate an economic failure on the part of the capitalistic system, and others.

Wolfert countered with the remark, "Add the fact that such forces in the United States are represented by Hearst and the Thomas Committee and you can see a great deal of sympathy for Communism and Soviet Russia."

Follow F. D. R. Beliefs
A woman in the audience who stated she had returned from Europe just two weeks ago asked why "so many people in America think of Russia as a great big wolf they are anxious to pounce upon." She stated that twenty million Russians had lost their lives during World War 2 while "I don't think more than one half million Americans were killed. Is this the former ally that we are painting so black? I am appealing to everybody here tonight to follow the footsteps of the late President Roosevelt who maintained we could get along with Russia."

Said Meyer in reply, "The answer to the emotional appeal we have just heard is that the foundation of the facts are wrong. There are those who ask us to have sympathy for the Soviet Government. . . . there is a myth growing up, started first by the woman who just spoke and it is what makes me take the position I do because the reality behind that myth is a complete absence of civil liberties, a large forced labor group, and based on official Soviet statements, the ending of ability of workers to move from factory to factory. Russians are not allowed to marry foreigners or leave the Soviet Union, and a national political party which has not had a convention in 10 years."

It was pointed out by Meyer in answer to a query that because some of the most well meaning people become involved in Communist propaganda, the liberal movement breaks down thereby destroying a counterpoint for a balanced opposition.

"Was it a slip of the tongue, or did you really mean to say 'anti-Soviet policy,' asked Dr. John Kingsbury of Mr. Weyl. "I think the policy of the United States is anti-Soviet," replied Weyl, "a policy to prevent any obvious policy by force of expansion of the Soviet System."

The speakers for the next forum meeting September 9 will be Eugene O'Neill, Jr., Heywood Brown, James Byrnes, with Kim Plochmann as moderator.

John Loves Mary
Starting Tuesday
Woodstock, Aug. 30.—Members of the resident company will star in "John Loves Mary" at the Woodstock Playhouse beginning Tuesday evening, August 31, and continuing through Sunday, September 5.

The play, written by Norman Krasna, has been amusing Broadway audiences for last two seasons. It concerns a returning American soldier who has married an English girl in order to bring her to the United States so that she can marry his best friend. At the same time he must convince his own girl that he is still in love with her.

Starring in the play will be Anthony Pass, Althea Murphy and Michael Sivy. Mr. Ross will be remembered by Woodstock audiences for his magnificent portrayal of the father in "All My Sons." During the season of 1948 Mr. Ross won the critics' prize award as the best performance of the year on Broadway for his role as the gentleman caller in "The Glass Menagerie." Althea Murphy was also in "The Glass Menagerie" on Broadway. As understudy for Julie Hayden, she has played the leading role in the off-Broadway productions of the play. Michael Sivy has been at the Playhouse for the past three seasons, and is particularly well known to Playhouse audiences for his performance in "The Hasty Heart" last season.

The play is directed by the resident director at the Playhouse, Joseph Leon, who this year directed "All My Sons," "Twentieth Century," and "Sailor Beware."

Others in the cast include Harrison Dowd, Dan Matthews, Eva Parnell, Ruth Lorn, Donn Joyce, Ole Olsen and Phil Vickers.

Paintings Sold
Woodstock, Aug. 30.—Frances Stein who will open a one-man show of paintings at the Town House Wednesday afternoon reports two sales from her Woodstock studio. Mrs. M. Bock, Chicago, has purchased a Still Life while Mrs. Irene Isaacs, Brooklyn, acquired a Floral painting.

Victim of Heat
Stamford, Conn., Aug. 30 (AP)—The body of Hjalmar Wainio, 59, was found yesterday in his Stamford hotel room, a victim, Medical Examiner Ralph W. Crane said, of heat prostration. It was Stamford's first death attributable to the current heat spell, which has taken at least 17 lives in Connecticut. Dr. Crane said Wainio had been dead since Friday. Police sought relatives. He is reported to have come here from Fort Chester, N. Y.

Less for Saratoga
Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Saratoga county today figured its five per cent cut on the 24-day August horse racing season at $891,225. This was a drop from the $976,245 total of last year and the more than $1,000,000 for 1946, the first season the tax levy was imposed.

HOME BUREAU

Clothing School

During the month of August, Helen Rowe, the assistant home demonstration agent, has been conducting a series of all-day training school classes in children's clothing, which were held once a week for four consecutive weeks. The following leaders attended the classes: Mrs. Jean Rounelais and Mrs. William Barnett from Highland, Mrs. Otto Hadley and Mrs. Dagmar Nelson from New Hurley, Mrs. H. Stern Montagny and Mrs. S. Jamiolkowski from Forest Glen, Mrs. Frank Black and Mrs. Howard Simpson from Modena.

These two leaders from each unit will be equipped to teach the making of boys suits and girls dresses in their own units. The course consisted of a discussion of points to look for when selecting children's clothing, the selection of suitable fabric and pattern, the use of the pattern and how to alter it, the cutting of the fabric, putting the garment together, and simple clothing finishes including the bound and worked button holes. These leaders plus those trained by Mrs. Elizabeth Schoonmaker in her series of evening lessons given during the month of July will be equipped to teach the course in their own units during the year.

Highway Worker Loses Left Leg

Andrew Radtke, Aged 19, Seriously Injured in Accident Today

A 19-year-old highway construction worker from Olive Bridge suffered the loss of his left leg and received other injuries as a result of an accident during construction operations on Route 28 at Ashokan about 8:30 a. m. today.

The youth, Andrew Radtke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Radtke, of Olive Bridge, is in serious condition at Kingston Hospital, authorities there reported this afternoon.

Dr. Saul Ritchie reported Radtke's left leg had been amputated on the thigh and that his right leg had been badly crushed. It was reported from the field office of the Corbinella Construction Company at Ashokan that Radtke, an employee, had been working near a large paving machine, and that a track of that machine passed over his leg.

The accident happened in Ashokan near the Ashokan Auto Service Garage, according to the report.

Workers placed the injured man into an automobile driven by Lawrence Miller, master mechanic on the project, who started to drive him toward Kingston.

Meanwhile, a call was placed for a W. N. Conner ambulance of this city. The ambulance met the automobile near West Hurley and Radtke was transferred and completed the trip to Kingston Hospital in the ambulance.

Another call had been placed to the Kingston Police Department and a radio patrol car was stationed at the Washington avenue hospital to provide escort to it.

The first call to this city was made at 8:27 a. m., just after the accident. The patient arrived at the hospital at 9 a. m.

Two Slightly Hurt In Crash of Autos

Automobiles driven by John H. Dwyer of 70 West Chestnut street and Henry H. Milder of Philadelphia, Pa., were in collision at the intersection of Washington and Lucas avenues about 1 a. m., Sunday, causing damage to both vehicles and slight injury to two persons, the police reported.

Ethel Jeffreys of the Bronx complained of injury to her right knee and Irene Law of Yonkers said both her knees were hurt, according to Patrolmen Leonard Ellsworth and Kenneth Hyatt, who investigated. Both women were passengers in the Milder automobile, they said. The complete front end of the Milder car was damaged while the right rear fender and tire of the Dwyer automobile received damage, according to the report.

Krajeski Charges Sims Hit Him on Head With Glass

Samuel Sims, 32, Negro, of Coeymans, was arrested Sunday by the state police on a second degree assault charge following a reported altercation during bricklayers' union outing on the grounds of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club.

Sims is charged with having struck Francis Krajeski, of 743 Broadway, on the head with a glass Sunday afternoon. He was arrested following an investigation by State Trooper John McFarland of the B.C.I., and Trooper H. E. Rasmussen.

Bail was fixed at $1,000 when Sims was arraigned before Peace Justice Percy Bush, town of Ulster, hearing was set for Sept. 1, and the defendant was lodged in the county jail until that time.

Krajeski was treated at the Kingston Hospital for head injuries.

Peters, Described

After Peters refused to take the stand, Presiding Inspector Ralph Farb told him that if adverse testimony were given against him and he did not testify, an inference might be drawn from his silence.

Two witnesses had testified. Farb adjourned the hearing until afternoon but said it would be put off until tomorrow if Peters were detained at the session of the Un-American Activities Committee.

The two witnesses' testimony linked Peters with the name Alexander Stevens through fingerprints on an alien registration card and other documents.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our relatives, friends, and neighbors for their kindness and also for the beautiful floral tributes received during our recent bereavement.

Juliana Force, 67, Dies; Director of Whitney Museum

Was Summer Resident in Woodstock Many Years; Had Sent Telegram to Art Conference

Woodstock, Aug. 30.—Mrs. Juliana Rleser Force, 67, director of the Whitney Museum of American Art since it was established in 1931, died Saturday at 3 p. m. after she had forwarded her telegram of good wishes to those attending the Woodstock Art Conference. She died at Doctors Hospital in New York city.

When the telegram was received and read to the large audience, it was not known that she had already passed away.

Mrs. Force had been a summer resident in Woodstock for many years and among the artists was a well loved and respected person. She had devoted most of her life to the furtherance of art and art. She will be greatly missed in Woodstock.

She was one of the speakers on last year's conference platform and was without question one of the most witty and most popular speakers who had many constructive ideas for the future of the artists.

During the opening hours of the conference it was announced by Yasuo Kuniyoshi that their good friend and patron was seriously ill. So deeply did Kuniyoshi feel about his message that he had to leave the platform. Arnold Blanch stepped into the breach and suggested a telegram be sent to Mrs. Force stating that she was very much missed and that the Force family was sending her love.

She was the wife of the late William J. Force, who was a member of the American Federation of Arts, a member of the American Association of Museums, the Executive Council of the City of New York, the Advisory Committee of the Girl Scouts, and the Municipal Art Society.

She also was a member of the American Defense Society, the New York Zoological Society, the Cosmopolitan Club and the Women's Club of New York.

In 1933 Mrs. Force was appointed regional chairman of the Federal Art Project, which was designed to provide needy artists with work, and at the same time, decorate public buildings.

She is survived by a sister, Miss Clara Rleser; and four brothers, Max, Robert, Louis and Charles Rleser.

Her funeral will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 12th street and Fifth avenue. Burial will be in Doylestown, Pa.

Consider Changes In Ulster County Fair, Field Day

Albert Kurdt, secretary of the Ulster County Agricultural Society said today he will propose at a meeting of the society tonight a committee to consider proposals on the conduct of the Ulster County Fair and Farmer's Field Day.

The meeting of the society was called by I. C. Barnes, president, for 9 p. m., today at the Farm Bureau office, and a report will be given on the 1948 fair recently held.

The committee to be proposed by Kurdt, who is also secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, would meet with the Farm Bureau Home Bureau and 4-H Club Association, and a plan is adopted, the agriculture representative will probably meet with the Area Relations Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Among proposals made is one that the fair be extended beyond one day. Mr. Kurdt stated that many factors must be considered before any specific changes can be made. A free fair can only be held if many agencies, organizations and individuals continue to donate considerable time and energy to the project.

The three departments of the Farm and Home Bureau and 4-H Club Association perform and contribute all of the clerical work. This includes all the book work of handling almost 500 different exhibitors. In addition the staffs and members of the three departments do much of the physical work. As a free fair various departments of the County and City cooperate wholeheartedly and contribute much valuable and needed assistance which could not be paid for.

The present fair is an outgrowth of the County Fair formerly held in Ellenville and old Farmer's Plenic. It is held to bring about $5,000 in cash to exhibitors, and have a get-together of rural and city people. Mr. Kurdt believes that these objectives should be kept in mind before any major changes are made.

Stated for Hearing
Thomas A. DeGregory, 43, of Rifton is scheduled for hearing Tuesday night before Peace Justice John Beaver, Town of Esopus, on a disorderly conduct charge. He was arrested early this morning by state police on complaint of his wife.

John L. Fallon, Sr., of 616 Broadway, has been a patient at the Benedictine Hospital for the past week and is reported to be recovering nicely.

State Police Recover Safe Reported Stolen

State Police at Highland, acting on a tip supplied by someone at Villa Baglieri, Town of Plattekill, recovered a safe reported stolen from an office of Cooper & McDonnell, 477 Main street, Poughkeepsie.

The safe was reported taken August 18 from an upper floor of the Poughkeepsie concern, and $800 in cash and about $400 in checks removed. It was found by the roadside on a back road leading to Sunset Camp, not far from Plattekill, police said.

Sgt. R. Keating and Trooper E. J. Devine, who investigated and recovered the safe, said that its door was on the opposite side of the road from where it was found in roadside underbrush.

The safe still held bookkeeping ledgers, the police said. It was turned over to the Poughkeepsie police.

200 Applications For Exemptions On Assessments

Nearly 200 applications for exemptions on assessments on property of ex-servicemen or their families have been received by Assessor Winfield Swart of this city.

Exemptions allowed will be filed with the city clerk on September 1. Although processing of the applications has not been completed and no figures are available as to the total amount of exemptions, it is expected that these exemptions will cause a noticeable decrease in the city's total assessed valuation for general purposes, according to C. LeRoy Brower, principal clerk.

Exemptions are granted under a recently enacted state law equal in amount to certain eligible moneys (federal and state bonus, pensions, mustering out pay, and other moneys) received by the ex-serviceman or his widow applied to the purchase or improvement of real property owned by the serviceman, his wife or widow, his dependent parent or a minor child.

Not only World War 2 veterans, but all veterans of all wars and all persons who served with the armed forces of the country in peacetime, are eligible to apply for exemptions. One or two exemptions have been applied for by widows of Civil War veterans, it was reported.

The exemptions apply only to the general tax roll. No exemptions are granted on school tax assessments.

Fire Threatens High Falls Garage

Fire which broke out about 1 p. m. today in a rubbish pile in the rear of the building threatened to destroy the large Quick Brothers Garage in High Falls.

Five fire companies—High Falls, Rosendale, Tilton, Cottekill and Stone Ridge—were on the scene at 1:30 but the flames were still raging out of control. Assistance of the neighboring companies was called through the Mutual Aid System headquarters in Kingston.

Lack of water hampered the fire fighters.

It was reported from Zwick's General Store in High Falls at 1:45 p. m. that firemen were bringing the flames under control and that danger of the fire spreading to other buildings had passed.

Charged With Driving Car Without License

Edwin Lee, Bostock Road, Shokan, was injured slightly, when the car he was driving ran off the Onteora Trail in front of the Stone Church shortly after 2 p. m. Sunday, according to State Trooper Ray Dunn of Phenicia.

The trooper arrested Lee on a charge of operating the car without a license and he is scheduled for hearing tonight before Peace Justice Lester S. Davis of West Shokan.

Lee said he ran off the road to avoid striking a dog. Trooper Dunn reported. He suffered lacerations of one arm and a slight head injury.

Free Outdoor Dances

The free outdoor dance sponsored by the Musicians' Union will be held tonight from 8 to 10 o'clock in Block Park. Marty Kelly's orchestra will provide music. The dances are made possible through the transcription and recording fund of the American Federation of Musicians. The next dance date has been changed from Wednesday, September 1, to Tuesday, September 7, at Hutton Park. Johnny Knapp and his orchestra will play.

SCHOOL CLOTHES

September means a change of plan for every lass and little man. It means school clothes and books instead of shorts and wading brooks.

The shops are filled with school supplies. And odds and ends a scholar buys. I've noticed windows here and there. Arranged with dolls for stylish wear. A reminder sweater... purse of red. And toppers planned for days ahead. Smart jackets and caps for rain. For Jack and Jill and tiny Jane.

I smile as current needs appear. Comparing these with yesterday's. We shined our shoes and scrubbed ourselves. As clothes were brought from mother's shelves. A patch or two when school began. Looked very well with Summer tan. My daughters laugh and murmur low. "Poor Dad was young... so long ago."

Fire Destroys Cabins and Barns

Blazes on Properties in Phenicia Sunday, Oliverca Today

Phenicia, Aug. 30.—A fire of unknown origin destroyed several barn structures on the Gormley property early Sunday morning and another blaze at Oliverca early today levelled two cabins on the Swartzberg property.

Families in two houses near the buildings which burned on the property to the rear of the Gormley Hotel here, were routed by the fire, but occupants of the hotel were considered a safe distance from the blaze.

Fire Chief Leroy Winchell said the fire destroyed a barn, ice house, chicken coop, part of a stable and "scored one house," but no total estimate of damage has been made.

Firemen from the Phenicia department, who were later assisted by a truck and men from Woodstock, fought the blaze from 2:30 to 3:10 a. m. They used four lines of hose in quelling the fire with water from the village hydrant system and pumped some from the creek.

The two houses, which were dangerously near the burning buildings, and part of the stable were saved by work of the firemen, but flames had gained too much headway in the cluster of outbuildings, to allow for effective work there.

The fire attracted crowds from the village and surrounding area. Phenicia firemen were called again at 4:30 a. m. today to assist Oliverca firemen fight the blaze which destroyed the bungalows on the Swartzberg property. The fire there was also of apparent unknown origin and Fire Chief Winchell said the structures were "a total loss."

The Oliverca fire department, still in the process of organization, according to Chief Winchell, is equipped only with a hand-pump unit, and the Phenicia truck had to travel considerable distance in answering the call.

One of the cabins was described as modernly equipped and the

YOUTH AT THE WHEEL

The 1948 report of the National Safety Council shows that very young automobile drivers, those below 20 years of age, continue to account for much more than their fair share of traffic accidents.

Partly this is because they lack the maturity of judgment and outlook, for normal driving conditions as well as for the unusual situation and the emergency, which will be theirs a few years later. Not all persons who drive have attained that maturity by the time they are 20 or so.

But partly also it is because young drivers too frequently take to the road without adequate preparation. Learning to drive is more than learning to steer and to manipulate the levers and pedals. There is needed also an appreciation of traffic movements, the capabilities and limitations of the automobile, the effects of weather and road conditions, and many other factors. We are in the habit of thinking these can be learned only by experience. Much can and should be taught to the youthful driver before his first "solo" trip.

Public high schools which have begun to teach driving to older students have found excellent results from such programs. As long as youthful drivers continue to contribute heavily to the accident toll there will be increasing pressure for universal adoption of driver training as a standard part of the school course.

BIG LEAGUE CITIES

The continued failure of the St. Louis American League baseball team to draw fans has revived the talk of transferring the franchise to Los Angeles. Distance is one argument against the move. To fulfill the schedules the teams would have to use planes freely, and club owners, remembering the crashes that occur every now and then in the Western mountains, would hold their breath all the time that a plane load of expensive stars was in the air.

Even more powerful a deterrent is the fact that Los Angeles is already in the Pacific Coast League. The consent of the other clubs would be necessary, and that would be unlikely to be given. Were it not for the existence of strong minor leagues, a city as large as Baltimore would never be left out of major league baseball. Not since 1902 has Baltimore been in the majors.

Club owners must covet the old days in the '70's and '80's when they could shift from city to city without much hindrance. It seems unbelievable, except to fans who know their baseball history, that the roster of major league cities has at one time or another included such cities of moderate population as Providence, Albany, Troy, Hartford and Worcester.

FLEEING CZECHS

A report from Sweden states that many Czech airmen have escaped from their home country since the Soviet coup, are swelling the ranks of Russia's opponents.

In the British Royal Air Force were many Czech flyers during the war, and 500 of their number have returned to that body. France's air corps is increased by 1,000 Czechs, and 2,000 more are preparing to join the air forces of the United States, Great Britain, and France. This report says that 25 men a day are escaping from Czechoslovakia.

These airmen are more fortunate than the average Czech, who must do the best he can where he is. He is the helpless pawn of a totalitarian regime. He can only hold on, as Czechs have always managed to do, to their ancient tradition of freedom, and hope for a better future.

LATER LABOR DAY

This year Labor Day comes almost as late in September as it ever does. Nearly a whole week of September has been added to the scant stock of vacation days when children do not have to be in school, and persons lucky enough to be able to stretch their

'These Days'

LAMBETH AND AMSTERDAM

The essential struggle in Europe is between two different conceptions of Man's existence upon the Earth and his relationship to all that is. Christianity relates Man to God and emphasizes moral law, the obligation of man to live under Divine inspiration and by proprieties which are inherent in Divine revelation. Marxism assumes the biologic view that man, a collection of cells, is what he is by chance and adds that not only is his nature but his conduct determined by his environment. Man therefore is dissociated from morality but must be obedient to the State, which is an essential part of his environment.

Protestant Christianity has, for a prolonged period, since the biologic evangelism of Thomas Huxley struggled to find a bridge between theology and the ever-changing postulates of science. Much of Protestantism, during the past half century, has been pushed away from religion to social science, from moral law toward reform of the laws of man, from God toward the immediate environment.

The Conferences of the Episcopalians at Lambeth and of all Protestant churches at Amsterdam give a revived tone to Protestant Christianity, for at both Conferences God ceased to be a formalistic deity to be ritualized and forgotten in the machinery of current affairs; rather He is restored as the Be-All of existence, the Divine Intelligence without whose sanction man truly becomes the best of Marxists conceivable.

It was particularly moved by the lofty address of John Foster Dulles at Amsterdam. Europeans undoubtedly wondered what manner of man Governor Dewey has chosen to be his secretary of state. At Amsterdam, they met a philosopher cognizant of his great responsibilities, willing to accept for America a moral leadership in the struggle to save Western civilization. Dulles diagnosed the disease of our age in these words:

"This is a time for the churches to expose the evil of war and its futility. Many are talking about war as though it were an unpleasant, but necessary, remedy for existing ills. The fact is that another world war would engulf all humanity in utter misery and make almost impossible the achievement of the good ends for which, no doubt, the combatants would profess to be fighting. At times, war may have to be risked as the lesser of two evils. But there is no holy war."

"War is evil. Over the ages violence has repeatedly been invoked for noble ends. That method is dramatic and exciting. It seems to promise quick and decisive results and, at times, it inspires fine and sacrificial qualities. But violent methods breed hatred, vengeance, hypocrisy, cruelty and disregard of truth. Because of such evils, wars have seldom accomplished lasting good and there is no reason to think that new war now would accomplish any good."

However, he cautioned:

"It is possible to have a peace of exhaustion or a peace of tyranny. But such peace is not true peace and it seldom lasts long. If peace is to be durable it must be organized on the basis of laws that are made peacefully and that can be changed peacefully."

If the organization of peace is dependent on law, it is necessary to have some understanding as to the nature of law. Are laws merely what the most powerful want, or are they an effort to carry into effect moral principles of right and wrong? And if law-making is relied upon to effect change, who are to control that process and how are non-assenters to be treated? Without agreement on these matters there can be no adequate organization.

"At this point the churches can make a decisive contribution. One is recognition that there is a moral law and that it provides the only proper sanction for man-made laws. The other principle is that every human individual, as such, has dignity and worth that no man-made law, no human power, can rightly desecrate."

"It is fundamental and if this is to be the American doctrine, we shall lead the Western World constructively, for we shall know the why and the where of our leadership and of our responsibilities."

That Body of Yours
By James W. Barton, M.D.

NORMAL BLOOD PRESSURE

The common saying that your systolic blood pressure should be 100 plus your age is considered true, but it should never go beyond 150—whatever the age. That the diastolic blood pressure never should be higher than 90, also is considered a true saying.

What many of us forget, however, is that our blood pressure is not always the same. When we first wake up in the morning the blood pressure is at its lowest because all the body processes are rested and no work, such as exercise or digestion of food, is going on. The blood pressure rises during the day because of the needs of the body.

Toward five or six o'clock the blood pressure is again at or near the low pressure of awakening because we are without food and doing little or no work. It rises again after the evening meal while digestion and absorption of food is going on. After a night's rest, it is again at its lowest point. This morning pressure is really your true pressure and a good time for your family physician or insurance physician to take your blood pressure.

In "Clinics," Drs. J. Q. Griffith and M. A. Lindauer, Philadelphia, state that blood pressure fluctuates about 20 millimeters in normal persons during the 24 hours, and often as much as 40 mm. in emotionally unstable people. "If repeated measurements show that systolic pressure is never greater than 150 and diastolic never greater than 100, blood pressure may be considered normal." If, however, only one measurement of blood pressure is made, then about 140 systolic and 90 diastolic is considered normal.

What is called the pulse pressure, the difference between systolic and diastolic, is normal if 40 or more.

If your blood blood pressure is "usually" within the limits above mentioned, do not let a little rise in blood pressure at times cause you anxiety.

vacations can do so with a clear conscience. Many of them will say, "Why couldn't Labor Day come at the end of the month instead of at the beginning?"

Why not indeed? Owners of summer hotels and tourist homes will echo the question. So will teachers. So will children and their parents. So will a lot of unorganized people. Labor Day is a state-made holiday. Each state could set the day when it wished, just as some states did with Thanksgiving a few years ago.

More logical than changing the date of the holiday, however, might be altering the custom of ending the vacation season arbitrarily with Labor Day, regardless of the date, the state of the weather, or the family's readiness to return to routine.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—Gov. Tom Dewey has been doing a lot of unreported high-powered conferring.

Among those he has counseled with in these private talks are Speaker Joe Martin, House Floor Leader Charles Halleck, Sen. Styles Bridges, N. H., and Sen. William Knowland, Cal.

In these conferences Dewey has presented the main outlines of his campaign strategy. He has sought advice, but in the main his operational plans are definitely formulated. They are as follows:

1. The G.O.P. campaign will get under way the middle of September and continue at an undiminished pace until election eve, November 3. Dewey will make a Labor Day speech. He does not consider it necessary to race around as extensively as President Truman will do that day. Dewey will confine his electioneering to a major speech at an important gathering.

2. The President's attacks on Congress—his chief campaign issue—will be met with the countercharge that he can't get along with Congress. To highlight this contention, Dewey will stress his record of "teamwork" with the New York Legislature, and also, on all occasions, will have prominently in his entourage several or more members of Congress.

3. Dewey will avoid any hard-and-fast promises to balance the budget or cut taxes. He feels that would be inadvisable because "we might not be able to deliver if the foreign situation gets worse." Instead, he will emphasize improving the administration of domestic and foreign affairs and eliminating "waste" and excessive personnel.

4. Dewey and his running mate will carefully coordinate their major speeches to eliminate conflicts and contradictions. This is to avoid what happened in the 1940 campaign, when the late Wendell Willkie and his running mate, the late Sen. Charles McNary, occasionally talked at opposite poles.

"Truman is on the defensive, and we propose to keep him there," Dewey told one congressional caller. "I'm going to hit hard, but there is no need for a long-winded discussion of issues. The public already knows what it's all about. From our standpoint, the shorter the campaign, the better. Above all, I want to avoid an anti-chamber before the election. We are going to build up to a climax, firing our heaviest guns in the final phases of the campaign. Timing is very important."

HOL RATIONS

Extract from a letter of a western cattle-raiser to a Washington friend, "sold a few steers this week that topped the local market—$28.80 per hundred pounds. Just grass steers, no grain. It looks like you're going to have to eat beans, fella, and like 'em."

Close Shave

Former O.P.A. Director Paul Porter is back at his private law practice, after a hectic stint as President Truman's special assistant during the emergency session of Congress. As Porter walked into his office, he was exuberantly greeted by Thurman Arnold, one-time head of the Anti-Trust Division.

"Welcome back," boomed Arnold. "You squeezed out of that one just in time. If that session had lasted a few days longer, they would have got you. They would have investigated you as a White House spy sure as shooting."

Hot Oil

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer is on a hot seat over a decision on steel oil piping he must make in a few weeks.

The question is the licensing of a huge fourth-quarter allocation for export to the Middle East. Four big U. S. oil corporations are clamoring for the piping—Standard of California, and Standard of California. They want it to complete their 1100-mile line from the Persian Gulf to the Lebanon coast. So far, only 300 miles have been installed.

The issue is hotly involved in both domestic and foreign politics. Independent U. S. oilmen are violently against any export of the scarce piping. They have been yelling for months that their operations are being crippled for lack of the material. Also, Army and Navy chiefs are skeptical about the Trans-Arabian pipeline. Testifying before the Senate Small Business Committee, which investigated the matter, they expressed grave doubt the line could be defended in the event of war. They advised concentrating on developing new oil sources in the Western Hemisphere.

The big oil companies argue their pipeline would pay itself off in a few years in huge oil supplies. Even if subsequently lost, they contend, it would still be a good proposition for the present.

Another equally touchy factor is a bitter attack on the pipeline by the embattled Israeli government. It charges the shortest, most feasible and cheapest route is into Haifa, but that the oil companies are deliberately running the line through the Arab lands to favor them.

The Israeli control a British-owned refinery at Haifa. So far, the British have refused to supply the plant with crude oil. Romania has offered to do so in return for refined products. The Israeli are threatening to make such a deal unless the British fork over.

Flashies

Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan is back from Greece with a large mass of testimony on the still-unsolved murder of movie star Gene Raymond for his autograph, he replied, "You can have it, but why do you want mine? I'm only a reserve major and the place is fairly crawling with generals and admirals." Carroll Reece, former Republican National Chairman running for senator in Tennessee, has hired an ex-Washington correspondent as his publicity agent.

Many Join Unions

Vienna (AP)—Trade Union membership in Austria has increased by nearly 300 per cent since the end of the war according to latest figures issued by the Austrian Federation of Trade Unions. The increase is fairly evenly divided between white collar workers, manual laborers and public service workers. The figures show there were 1,238,088 Union members in Austria at the end of 1947 compared to 331,213 at the end of 1945.

From the Colleagues of Justice Hughes, Who Worked With Him, Come an Unending Flow of Admiring Comments

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 30.—Memories of a great American come surging to mind as the news pages record the passing of Charles Evans Hughes.

Unforgettable memories they are of scenes that coincided with events of transcendent importance in the last 40 years of American history. From his colleagues who worked with him came always an unending flow of admiring comments.

"Hughes is the most efficient man I have ever known," remarked Justice Brandeis to the writer one day after Mr. Brandeis retired from the court. It was an efficiency of mind and an efficiency in the use of time in doing his work that was a source of constant amazement.

"Isn't Hughes a star?" commented President Harding as we sat one evening at the White House discussing the Davies plan for rehabilitating Europe which Secretary of State Hughes had sponsored. It was a typical characterization of those days shared by members of the cabinet. Herbert Hoover, destined as President to appoint Charles Evans Hughes in 1930 to be Chief Justice. It was a welcome return to the bench he never really wanted to leave.

This writer first talked with Mr. Hughes early in 1916, having been assigned as a reporter to ask him about the "draft-Hughes" movement which for several months dominated the political news prior to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June. Again he again gave me permission to write that he was not a candidate for the presidency and did not wish to leave the Supreme Court. When the writer pointed out that nevertheless a draft nomination could occur, Mr. Hughes replied vehemently off-the-record:

"It is incredible. It has never happened before that a man who did not lift his finger to get a nomination should get it. Usually these 'draft' movements are not real at all. There is some political organization back of it. I will not permit it. The 'draft' will therefore not happen."

An organization did appear to gather delegates under the leadership of Frank Hitchcock, formerly postmaster general in the cabinet of President Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Hughes publicly repudiated that organization and urged its disbandment. The movement grew nevertheless, because it was truly spontaneous. Just a few days before the convention, William Howard Taft, president of the United States from 1909 to 1913, and himself a jurist with a profound admiration for Mr. Hughes, told me the movement was so strong that nobody could head it off—not even Hughes himself. Mr. Taft told me in confidence he was sure he could persuade Mr. Hughes to accept, and he did when the nomination came by acclamation.

I watched Mr. Hughes as he campaigned. It was a difficult adjustment for him to make. As we rode through Indiana one day, he told me privately he was sure he was going to be elected. The writer in that campaign supported the re-election of President Wilson on the ground that continuity in foreign policy was paramount. A handful of electoral votes separated Mr. Hughes from victory. It took several days to establish the official result.

It is this writer's conviction that Mr. Hughes, however, had his best chance to be elected president in 1908 and that he never had been the Republican nominee that year. It will be recalled that Hughes had been twice elected governor of New York and had pioneered with public utility regulation by state commission and had introduced a host of other reforms.

He was easily the most respected man in public life. When President Theodore Roosevelt nominated Mr. Hughes to the Supreme Court in 1907, many political observers felt he was taking out of the way the one man whose popularity could prevent the nomination in 1908 of his own candidate, Secretary of War Taft. Theodore Roosevelt undoubtedly calculated that Mr. Taft would be a one-term president and would retire voluntarily or involuntarily in 1912 and that Mr. Roosevelt could come back to the White House—whereas Mr. Hughes had been elected, he would be a two-term president from 1909 to 1917.

Although his work on the bench will probably place him higher in history, Mr. Hughes' performance as a secretary of state was equal to his leadership in the Washington Conference on Naval Armament was a great stroke for world peace as was also his successful efforts to abolish the Anglo-Japanese alliance. It is no disparagement of his record to note that subsequently the United States failed to follow through with the necessary sequel to both these agreements.

Throughout Washington there was always a great admiration for Mr. Hughes, irrespective of party. The fight against confirmation which came from labor unions when he was appointed chief justice made him sad, but he never admitted it publicly—and he told the writer at the time that his opponents would some day find out how badly mistaken they were in trying to make him out a "reactionary." They did find out. For many of the Hughes decisions are landmarks in liberalization.

My own impression of Mr. Hughes will ever be associated with three unforgettable scenes—he was the only chief justice in history who had the opportunity to administer the presidential oath to the same man at three successive inaugurations—1933 and 1937 and 1941. It always made me think of 1909, 1913 or 1917, when on any one or two of those occasions Charles Evans Hughes might himself have been taking the oath of office. He would have made a great president of the United States. He should be rated in history among the greatest of all presidents—both because of his unimpeachable character and rectitude and because of his quality as well as quantity of his public services.

AS PEGLER SEES IT
By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Aug. 29.—In a tense, drama-packed, spine-tingling swirl of top-level testimony, spear-headed by Merriwell Booth, the high-echelon policy chief of the State Department, the Committee Against Pro-American Activities today sparkplugged the denials of subversive patriotism in the White House at any time since March, 1933.

George Spivey, American, the notorious alleged patriot, he named Mr. Booth as the top-drawer undercover agent of the pro-American conspiracy.

"I knew him well," Mr. Spivey testified. "We held secret meetings in his apartment and we typed out subversive ideas on sheets of paper which later were infiltrated in some of President Roosevelt's speeches. They were these slips in a hat and made up the chats and speeches that way. I remember one phrase well. I ought to, because I wrote it and Mr. Booth put it in Roosevelt's next speech."

"At what was that phrase?" asked Commissioner Slupp, the lend-lease inquisitor on loan from the Kremlin.

"President Roosevelt was speaking about Hitler in this fireside chat," Mr. Spivey said. "I told Mr. Booth this would be a good chance to sneak in a plug for the United States. I wrote out the phrase 'this great nation of ours.' That night, in the White House, when they were assembling the speech Mr. Booth dropped it in the hat. So the next night it came over the air. We all got a secret thrill at our underground headquarters when we heard the President say, 'this great nation of ours' has never before sunk to such a depth."

Mr. Booth was present in the hearing room. He was asked to stand.

"Comrade Booth," said Commissioner Slupp, "you have heard the charge what do you say? Do you know this man, Spelvin?"

"It is ten years ago and I think he has had a haircut since then," Mr. Booth said, "but I think he is the man I came to see me about a dog. We did not discuss Americanism or criminal patriotism one way or another."

"What kind of dog?" the commissar asked.

"A Russian wolfhound, Comrade Commissioner," Mr. Booth said. "Was he ever engaged in the policy echelons of the top drawer?"

"Oh, no," the witness said. "He never sparked the high brass. He seemed to be a harmless nut on the subject of 100 per cent Americanism, but just a crackpot native type. His people came from Kansas or some such place. The bourgeois patriotic type, but he didn't seem dangerous. In the Bronx or Harvard Law School they would laugh at his kind. He

COLONIALS SWEEP SERIES; MOVE INTO FOURTH

Bedell, Rourke and Petty Score Impressive Wins

Stamford Pioneers	52	71	.423	25

The Kingston Colonials got those indispensable of winning baseball—tight pitching and clutch hitting—in large doses over the week-end to sweep a crucial series from the Bridgeport Bees, move into fourth place, and dig in for a crucial schedule ahead which starts tonight in Poughkeepsie.

Kingston is now entrenched in the first division 1 1/2 games ahead of Bridgeport and four in front of the last place Stamford club. Following tonight's game in Poughkeepsie, the Colonials return home for crucial engagements against Port Chester on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Pitching Superb

Three well pitched games by Harry Bedell, Danny Rourke and Harry Petty accounted for 9-4, 5-1 and 9-0 victories over the Bees as the Kobeskyites extended their modest winning streak to four in a row.

Paul Dunlop, veteran rightfielder, maintained his steady batting pace of two hits and two runs batted in a game since his elevation to the cleanup spot. Manager Eddie Kobesky stayed out of the entire series.

Bridgeport scored in only three of the 25 innings in the series and showed its anxiety to win by committing 12 miscues.

Bedell Wins

High Harry Bedell won Saturday's opener with a six-hitter. The Colonials opened with a 6-run blast off Adametz and handed Harry a 9-0 lead before the Bees touched him for two runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Dunlop rapped two doubles and drove in a pair of runs as Petty cashed in on Sunday's opener. Elenchin and Al Ferony also bashed two hits apiece. A three-run fifth highlighted by Dunlop's double was the clincher. Petty lost his shutout in the sixth when the rival pitcher, Bird, singled home a run.

Rourke Hurls Shutout

Danny Rourke turned in another airtight pitching effort, spacing eight hits and breezing to a 9-0 win as the Colonials pounded out 14 hits. Danny picked up three of the hits himself. Elenchin, Dunlop, and Goldsmith also bagged two safeties. Ralph Matzer had a bad day with three errors but none proved damaging.

Coaches Yankee Juniors

VERNON LEFTY GOMEZ

One of the greatest pitchers in New York Yankee baseball history, the famed, eccentric southpaw, Vernon Goofy Gomez, is now a member of the Yank farm organization. He and George Selkirk, successor to Babe Ruth, conducted the trials to select members of the "Yankee Stars of Tomorrow" who meet the K.A.A. Juniors in the annual junior all-star classic Saturday, Sept. 4 at municipal stadium. Gomez will be on the coaching lines for the Yankee stars.

Major League Roundup

By The Associated Press

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Dodgers did it. They accomplished what many experts said would be impossible.

In last place on July 2, Burt Shotton's Brooklyn club was perched in first place today following a tremendous two-months drive out of the National League cellar.

They did it the hard way too, sweeping a doubleheader from their arch rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals, in their home lair, 12-7 and 6-4.

Of course, the Brooks got help from the Pittsburgh Pirates who knocked off the erstwhile leader, the Boston Braves, twice, 6-1 and 5-2.

Three Points Ahead

The Brooks now are three percentage points ahead of the Braves, who lead the third place Cardinals by a game and a half. Pittsburgh established itself as a definite pennant threat by climbing to within three games of the top.

As in many of their victories during this spectacular surge which saw them win 39 out of 55, the Dodgers yesterday were paced by Jackie Robinson, their star negro second baseman. Robby, who has zoomed his average from .275 of two months ago to an even .300, cracked out six hits including a home run in the twin bill.

The second game went 10 innings before the Brooks put over the clincher. A pinch single by Arky Vaughan drove in Pete Reiser with the deciding run. George Shuba also scored when Catcher Del Wilber fumbled Enos Slaughter's throw to the plate on the play.

Harry Brecheen and Red Munger were the losing hurlers. Paul Minner, a secondary hurler, was credited with the first game victory for the Dodgers. Hugh Cawyer, in relief, got the second victory.

Chesnes Wins 11th

Rookie Bob Chesnes of Pittsburgh bagged his 11th triumph against only three defeats in limiting the floundering Braves to seven hits. He had a shutout until the ninth when Earl Torgeson singled and scored Boston's lone run on a Jeff Heath triple. A four-run rally in the seventh inning won the nightcap for Vic Lombardi.

Cincinnati's Reds extended the New York Giants' losing streak to six straight, whipping Leo Durocher's men twice by the same 3-2 score. Pinch Hitter Danny Litwiler singled home the winning run in the last of the ninth in the first game, and Pinch Hitter Augie Galan did the same in the fifth inning of the second game. The nightcap was called with two out in the last of the fifth because of rain.

Chicago's tail-end Cubs divided a pair with the Philadelphia Phillies taking the second game, 10-4, after Walter Dubiel of the Phils won a 1-0 hurling duel from Bob McCall of the Cubs.

The pennant picture in the American League remained unchanged as every club divided a double header.

the Sox. Les Moss, Don Lund and Al Zarrell banged fourbaggers for the Browns who collected 20 hits off Mickey Harris and three successors in the nightcap.

The runner-up New York Yankees gained a split with the Detroit Tigers at the Stadium, winning the second game, 11-10, after Detroit had come from behind to take the opener, 9-5. The Tigers, trailing 9-0, came up with five runs in each of the sixth and seventh innings to nab a 10-9 lead.

However, Bill Johnson socked a two-run homer in the seventh to win for the Yankees. A three-run homer by Hoot Evers had given the Tigers a temporary lead. Dick Wakefield's pinch hit homer with one on base provided the winning runs in the first game.

The split left the Yankees still a game and a half behind the Sox.

Lemon Cops 18th

After Bob Lemon had pitched the third place Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 shutout over the Washington Senators, the Nats came back to win the second game, 5-2. Jake Early's three-run double off Relief Pitcher Bob Feller overcame Cleveland's 2-0 lead. Lemon racked up his 18th victory of the season and his ninth shutout with a three-hitter in the opener.

The fourth place Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 5-4, in the first game, but the American League cellar-dwellers came back to win the second game, 7-2.

Since the Washington Redskins of the National Pro Football League were organized in 1932 they have drawn playing talent from 101 different colleges.

Forbes Norris, Harvard sophomore who has just returned from the 1948 Olympic games, successfully defended his National A.A.U. Long Distance Swimming title Sunday at Williams Lake.

Forbes negotiated the course in one hour, 35 minutes and six seconds to finish well ahead of Ted Stevens, 17-year-old speedster from Cleveland, Ohio.

The University Circle Y.M.C.A. team of Cleveland, led by Stevens, won team honors for the second straight year.

Takes Early Lead

Following the same technique that won the race for him last year, Norris grabbed the lead at the very start. The defending champion did not have it easy, however, because for the first two miles there was less than a yard or two between him and John Craigie, Junior National Champion swimming for the United States Military Academy, Walter Heck, of the Brighton Swimming Club of Atlantic City, and Ted Stevens, were swimming in third and fourth place not far behind. At the half way mark the Harvard lad began to widen his lead and there was little doubt from there on in who the winner would be. Craigie, of West Point, ran into trouble on the last half mile when he was seized with cramps and struggled through on his nerve to take eighth place.

Craigie, of West Point, ran into trouble on the last half mile when he was seized with cramps and struggled through on his nerve to take eighth place.

The real contest of the afternoon came from the second place position when Stevens, who at the last half mile was over 300 yards behind Heck put on a sprint that had the fans spellbound.

In the team race the University Circle Y.M.C.A. team of Cleveland, Ohio, composed of Ted Stevens, Mark Morris, a 13-year-old who swam beautifully to take fifth place, and Bob Foley, successfully defended the team title they won last year by finishing with eight points. The Brighton Swimming Club of Atlantic City made up of Walter Heck, Harry Jaggers, and Bernard Oleskin, finished second with 15 points. Third place team honors went to the Brooklyn Central Y.M.C.A. team of Henry Pierr, John Budzako, and Oscar Pierr, who had 22 points. The lowest number of points in this race was 41-year-old Harry Jaggers, who went to the first swimmer over 35 years of age to finish second with 41 points. The Brighton Swimming Club of Atlantic City, who just nosed out 47-year-old Alex Sullivan, of the Naugatuck, Connecticut Y.M.C.A. who was last years veteran winner.

Minister Repeats Anti-Draft Speech

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Rev. Ernest Bromley, Methodist minister from Nassau, N. Y., who has urged youths not to register for the draft and brought himself under federal scrutiny, repeated his plea last night at an anti-draft rally.

He told 150 young people at the Labor Temple, on the eve of draft registration, that the draft is "slavery to the military levitation."

"Those who do not want to be slaves to it must not take the least step toward it," he said.

"The fact that it is now a law makes it no better. If one has previously maintained that conscription brings corruption, war and ruin, it is folly to act now as if it will not."

After Bromley urged non-compliance during a sermon a week ago, Brig. Gen. Ames T. Brown, New York State Selective Service director, asked United States District Attorney Irving Higbee at Syracuse to "investigate and take appropriate action."

show. Judging of 90 Aberdeen Angus and 80 Jersey cattle, judging of 18 Grange exhibits, judging of sheep, swine, the flower show, vegetables and fruit, an afternoon rodeo show and a night card of midget auto racing.

Wednesday's schedule includes an all-day pony show with 148 entries, five harness races of two heats each, starting at 2 p. m., judging of more than 100 purebred Guernseys and 4-H Club Holstein entries, poultry judging and a night rodeo show under lights. As an added attraction Demon Hanover, Hambletonian champion, will run an exhibition mile.

Harness racing will be completed Thursday with a card of four races of two heats each. The horse show will get under way with twenty odd classes scheduled. Flower show arrangement classes will be judged. Meat cutting preparation and cooking demonstrations are scheduled for afternoon and evening with George Wellington, Cornell meat specialist, in charge.

The sanctioned horse show will be completed Friday with the climax coming late in the afternoon when saddle, hunter and jumper championships will be decided and trophies will be awarded. 4-H Club dairy and beef judging and showman contests are scheduled for the afternoon. The rodeo will stage a night performance.

All exhibits will remain in place until 10 p. m. Saturday. Formal events scheduled include afternoon and evening wild west rodeo shows.

Among the unique new inventions is a hat that can also be used as a rain-catcher by thirty men adrift at sea or aloft in the wilderness.

members of Draft Board 18, were present to register the first man, as was Walter E. Dutcher, chief clerk of Boards 18 and 19.

Registration proceeded without difficulty this morning, Dutcher said. One question which came up several times in Kingston and in outlying districts concerned the possibility of eligible young men of registering on a day prior to that scheduled for the individual's age group. After checking, Dutcher said, it was found that this is permissible, and several young men were registered today.

Dutcher pointed out, however, that the schedule was set up to stagger the numbers of registrants to prevent too great a load on the registrars on any particular day, and he recommended that persons report on the scheduled day unless it is absolutely necessary to register ahead of time.

Registrants may not report later than the day out for their age group in any case, he said.

Dr. Rosenberg suggested this morning that veterans bring their discharge from military service with them when reporting. He said this will greatly expedite the work.

More volunteers are needed for work with Draft Board 18 in Kingston. Dr. Rosenberg said. Those willing to work part time may be placed on the schedule by calling Chief Clerk Dutcher at Kingston 6100.

A Million New Yorkers
Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—The vanguard of nearly 1,000,000 draft-age New Yorkers trooped to registration centers today.

Maj. Gen. Ames T. Brown, State Director of Selective Service, estimated that about 350,000 men outside of New York City will register in the state. The New York director, Col. C. C. Candler, figured the number in the metropolitan area at about 600,000.

Selective service officials believe that 350,000 of the 9,500,000 registrants in the nation will be called during the first year of operation of the 1948 selective service act.

Of this number, New York State is expected to furnish approximately 10 per cent or 35,000.

Official Census
Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—This is R-Day—Registration Day.

It's the first step in America's plan to build up its armed forces with a peacetime draft.

Beginning today and continuing through September 18 nine and a half million men 18 through 25 years old will go to registration centers and fill out postcard-sized forms.

Registration doesn't mean these men will be drafted. Actually it's just a sort of official census of draft-age men.

Only a fraction of the millions who register will be drafted into the armed forces for a 21-month stretch during the next two years—maybe one out of every 42.

For example those under 19 and most of the veterans are exempt and millions of others will be deferred for various reasons. But they must register, anyway.

Most of those eventually inducted will be under 22. And almost all of them will serve in the Army, The Navy, Marines and Air Force hope to fill their ranks with volunteers.

If you are in the 18 through 25 age bracket, this will brief you on registration:

First, locate your nearest registration center. There are about 20,000 of them.

Next, if you are a veteran, dig up your discharge papers. You need them to check on dates and service.

Men must register by age group, so check your birth date and find out which day you are supposed to sign up.

Tomorrow and September 1 men born in 1923 will register. The schedule then goes on like this:

Men born in 1924 register September 2-3; 1925, September 4-5; 1926, September 6-7; 1927, September 8-9; 1928, September 10-11; 1929, September 12-13; 1930, September 14-15; 1931, September 16-17; 1932, September 18, sign up September 17-18.

If you aren't 18 by September 19, you register on the day of your 18th birthday, or within five days of it. But you won't be eligible for the draft until you are 19. You're just getting your name in the "census."

—And indeed the duty—to insist upon such responsibility," he said. Amplifying the theme of "control from within," Sulzberger pointed out that medical groups and the legal profession in many countries have set up disciplinary bodies to see that standards are maintained among doctors and lawyers.

He suggested this as a topic "worthy of your consideration as a body."

Johnson in Lead
Dallas, Tex., Aug. 30 (AP)—Rep. Lyndon Johnson today held a lead of 693 votes over ex-Governor Coke Stevenson in the photo-finish Democratic runoff for U. S. Senate. The 40-year-old congressman went into the lead last night on the basis of returns from the Texas Election Bureau after trailing for more than 24 hours.

Adams Will Be Spokesman at Bridge Hearing

Walter Adams will be the spokesman for the Kingston Chamber of Commerce at the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge hearing Tuesday President Louis B. Steketee announced today. Mr. Adams is chairman of the traffic and transportation committee of the chamber. This committee has had several meetings and is prepared to present a statement.

Mr. Steketee stated he expected the hearing to be attended by a large number of local persons, although the hearing, called by the Army Corps of Engineers, concerns only the navigation aspects of the bridge application. There is a possibility that numerous related matters may be presented. All members of the original bridge committee have been invited.

The legislation authorizing the bridge work now being done requires that the New York State Bridge Authority must determine the need of the proposed bridge and then the application must be approved by the state superintendent of public works. Both must determine that the construction of the bridge is in the public interest. The hearing tomorrow is one of the several hurdles still to be surmounted, stated Mr. Steketee, before construction work can be started.

The final completion of the bridge is one of the major projects of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and Secretary Albert Kurdt has been instructed to devote as much time as necessary to this activity.

Truman Almost Certain Of Support From C.I.O.

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—The C.I.O. seemed practically certain today to throw its support behind President Truman in the November election.

But unless the trend is reversed, both the C.I.O. and A.F.L. figure to spend a great deal more time in efforts to elect labor supporting Congress members than in trying to put over the Truman-Barkley ticket.

The C.I.O. called its 51-member executive board into session today to act officially on the subject of political endorsements.

The top leadership already has come out 8 to 1 for Mr. Truman, and the Americans for Democratic Action—with a number of C.I.O. sponsors—added its unanimous endorsement at Chicago yesterday.

The A.D.A. national board also voted without dissent to work for the election of "liberal" candidates for Congress. While the "vast majority" of these were said to be Democrats, the anti-Communist group adhering to New Deal objectives said a few Republicans will get A.D.A. help.

In turning its back on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the G.O.P. presidential nominee, A.D.A. said he lacks leadership, has "absolved" Congress from "an obligation to act on even the vague" Republican platform, and provides "no immediate hope for liberal revival" with the party.

The A.D.A. resolution called Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party "dangerous and irresponsible."

While the A.F.L. steered clear of a formal endorsement, federation leaders agreed last week to form a committee to back the Democratic presidential ticket.

Patrons Committee For G.L.F. Is Elected

High Falls, Aug. 30—Howard Basten and C. M. Hardenbergh of Stone Ridge were re-elected to the Patrons committee of High Falls patrons of G. L. F. at the annual meeting attended by 144 farmers-members recently at the Stone Ridge Grange Hall.

Other committeemen are Stanley Steen, High Falls, and Joseph Pratt, Stanley Roosa and Ray Webber, all of Stone Ridge. Walter Davenport Sons and the High Falls Hardware Co. are the joint agent-buyers.

At the annual meeting of the Patrons' committee of Kingston Patrons of G.L.F., last week, Joseph Browne, Ray Elmendorf and Harold Oterhoubt were elected. Other committeemen are Charles L. Allen, M. V. Bryant and Harry Siemen, all of Kingston.

During the meeting Robert Spears spoke on petroleum distribution.

"Was he against equal rights?" "No, he was for them, Comrade Commissar," Mr. Booh said. "But, Comrade Booh, equality is the issue in the southern states this year. Please explain!"

"Oh, I don't mean that," the witness said. "This fellow Spelvin was always demanding equality for Americans. He used to say, 'an American is as good as a Bessarabian under the skin.' He used to say, 'like same God made Americans and Ukrainians.'"

"I remember once I asked him suddenly, 'Spelvin, where did your people come from? You seem to have no accent.'"

"The charge of pro-Americanism either in the White House or the State Department since March 4, 1933, is ridiculous to all who know the facts."

Giant explosions associated with sunspots on the suns of the universe may be giving birth to the powerful cosmic rays which bombard our earth from outer space.

"He flared up and yelled: 'That is the most blatant kind of bigotry!' He shook his fist and yelled, 'there are more than a hundred million Americans in this country who didn't come from Russia, the Balkans or the Baltic or go to Harvard Law School. You can't keep us down forever. We demand equality in the government. One of these days you will see Americans in the State Department.'"

"Yes," he said, "you will soon see Americans in the White House and Americans on the Supreme Court!" I reported him to Mrs. Roosevelt right away for inciting hatred of minority groups.

"If you merely commented on his peculiar speech he would almost go crazy. But he couldn't disguise it and of course his type could never get into Harvard Law and cultivate the official accent."

"He would say, 'national origin should have absolutely nothing to do with it when a man applies for a job in the State Department. You have no right to ask where my parents came from. Native Americans have feelings, too, just like Bulgarians. We demand a chance!'"

"You say you find it hard to recognize Mr. Spelvin," the commissar said. "Has he changed appearance much?"

"Oh, almost entirely," Comrade Booh said. "Hat, his hair cut, changed his tie. Different suit. I think he had a tooth filled. A different man."

"You are very bright yourself and would have recognized him instantly but for the disguise of these changes?" the commissar asked.

"Oh, indeed," the witness said. "After all, I went to Harvard Law. Then secretary on the Supreme Court, keeping subversive pollution out of the opinions of the justices. I submit a list of 60 high-echelon, policy-level brass-hats who will attest to my superior intellect."

"And still you can't remember this man, Spelvin?"

"Haircut. New tie. Pants pressed. Tooth filled. He fooled me completely. Very clever disguise."

At the White House a special announcement was made following the adjournment of the hearings on pro-American activities:

"The red-herring smear of the criminal patriots will not deceive the voters. The phrase, 'This great country of ours' in the speech of our late, revered leader was spoken with broad sarcasm, as a playback of the record plainly proves. These chats were carefully screened from top-level authority down through the echelons."

Suicide Pistol Is Same as Gun in Watkins Murder

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 30 (AP)—Ballistics experts left no doubt today that the gun with which New York flanneler Henry M. Brooks took his life was the same used in the Princeton Inn slaying of his business partner, Joseph R. Watkins.

Mercer County Prosecutor Mario Volpe, reporting the results of ballistics tests over the weekend, said the findings meant the case was closed as far as his office is concerned.

Brooks, 61, shot himself with a .32 caliber revolver Friday in an Ashbury Park hotel after his arrest was ordered by Volpe for the murder of Watkins, 34, a lawyer and investment broker.

Watkins was found shot to death Wednesday in his car in the driveway of the fashionable Princeton Inn.

Volpe said he believed an argument over a $72,000 judgment Watkins held against Brooks was a prime factor in the shooting. The two men had been business partners from 1935 to 1940, Volpe said, and investigation disclosed that Watkins had obtained the judgment over business transactions made by Brooks while Watkins was ill during 1939.

The prosecutor said he was turning over to New York state officials papers dealing with financial matters which were found in Brooks' briefcase.

The New York district attorney's office has been investigating Brooks' various business activities.

Letters left behind by Brooks in his suicide hotel room told that his last thoughts were of his wife and daughter, and of ways to ease the "burden and the future" for them. Monmouth county officials said the letters also referred to "that Princeton thing" and indicated that Brooks had made efforts to affect some settlement of the judgment with Watkins.

Socially prominent Mrs. Brooks told authorities she had no knowledge of her husband's business dealings. She said she was unaware of the origin of $125,000 attachments which have been placed against their home and 12-acre estate in fashionable Greenwich, Conn.

Many New Features At 'Centennial Fair'

Many new features will be offered this year at the fourth annual fair sponsored by the Fair Street Reformed Church. The fair, which opens September 9 for two days and two nights, will be titled the "Centennial Fair" in commemoration of the church's 100th anniversary.

In addition to the usual booths and attractions, there will be a century tea, a century exhibit, a Friend From Afar booth and an art exhibit. The chairman and workers of these new attractions promise interesting and unusual programs.

Edward Dingleby, chairman of decorations, is planning attractive and coordinated designs for the booths and fair grounds.

A dinner will be served on Thursday, September 9, and a cafeteria supper on the following day. A variety of games for both children and adults as well as entertainment programs will be offered each day and night of the fair.

In North America there are 600 kinds of birds, belonging to 75 families.

Two Army Prisoners Are Believed Drowned

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Two of three army prisoners who attempted to escape from Fort Jay on Governors Island are believed to have drowned while swimming in the strong current of the channel between the island and Brooklyn, Army authorities said yesterday.

The missing men were identified as Laurence Wagoner, 21, of Lumbago, Wis., who was serving one year on a conviction of larceny of civilian and government property; and Roy Inman, 21, of Temple, Okla., who was serving one year for theft and sale of government property.

The third man, Lowell Patton, 22, of Soldier, Ky., was rescued by persons in a motorboat as he cried for help about 150 yards from the Brooklyn mainland.

Patton told harbor police he saw one of the other two men disappear during the attempt to swim the mile-wide channel, and he did not know what happened to the third man.

Harbor police reported the two apparently drowned, after finding no trace of them in a two-hour search.

Army officials said Patton had been returned from Germany to serve a one-year term for assault with a dangerous weapon.

Raises for 33,000

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Wage increases, ranging from $1.80 to $4 a week have been awarded to 33,000 employees in 170 New York hotels, Edward P. Mulrooney, impartial chairman of the hotel industry, announced yesterday. The employees are members of eight A.F.L. unions, which make up the New York Hotel Trades Council.

Air Parcel Post Will Give Users Rapid Delivery

Inauguration of nationwide, worldwide air parcel post service on September 1 will give United States residents the most modern and expeditious delivery service in the world, Postmaster William R. Kraft of this city said today.

The new, highly specialized air-borne service was created by act of the 80th Congress and will reduce transit time of parcels to a fraction of that required by other modes of transportation, he said. It will serve the patrons of more than 42,000 post offices in this country and its possessions.

Postmaster Kraft said that parcel post packages sent by air will receive the same particular consideration shown air mail in routing. In addition, identical doorstop delivery will be given to air parcel post as is afforded other forms of mail.

He added that distinct air parcel post stickers, printed in red, white and blue and bearing the likeness of a winged package with the earth's globe underneath, will soon be available without cost at the local post office.

"With a scheduled plane taking off or landing within the United States on an average of every seven seconds around the clock, and an overseas-bound plane leaving our borders every 30 minutes, we stand ready to give our patrons the fastest parcel post service offered anywhere," Postmaster Kraft said.

While international air parcel post service has been available from the United States and its possessions for several months, domestic airborne service is being launched for the first time in history.

Hunt Rapists
Providence, R. I., Aug. 30 (AP)—Police today were searching for three young men who raped and robbed a 26-year-old Bronx, N. Y., woman in an isolated section of this city late Saturday night. Police Capt. Anthony A. Gentile said the woman was brutally beaten about the face before she was attacked by the three men. She came to Providence 10 days ago to visit her fiancé, a sailor stationed aboard the aircraft carrier Leyte which was recently docked at the Quonset Point Naval Air Station.

Canada is larger than the United States proper and Alaska combined.
